Raleigh, NC, – November 6, 2009 Succession planning is a dynamic process that is focused on leadership teams who collaborate to identify and develop talent needs for today and the future. Nicoa Dunne, a 16-year veteran of corporate America and a Human Resource Executive will discuss practices that are increasingly focused on making talent decision more objective and data-based at RWHRMA’s Monthly Meeting on November 17, 2009. Dunne’s early years were spent at General Electric, then Thermo Fisher Scientific and moved to AllscriptsMisys Healthcare Solutions.
